It is not wrong to say that the food we eat is the gift of agriculture activities and Indian farmers who work their sweat to provide us this food.

Agriculture is the source of food. It provides employment to a large population.

This goes beyond the obvious connection here that we would not be very healthy without food and other nutritional products.

It is not wrong to say that the food we eat is the gift of agriculture activities and Indian farmers who work their sweat to provide us this food.
